The actors make a lot of money to perform in the character for the camera, and the administrators and crew members pour an incredible talent in creating "magic films" which makes everything simple and fun. However, some of the most famous films in history had thus challenging and frustrating productions that everyone has worried that they would have been flops for offices "or completely demolished before completion. Take a look at our list of fantastic films struck that almost don't have Made the big screen. Oz's wizard is an iconic classic, so it is difficult to believe that the bright show 1939 mgm was almost never done. From the beginning, it took 17 screenwriters and six directors to face the project. When they finally resume, the shooting was a disaster. Photo of courtesy: silver screen collection / getty images The original Tin Man, Buddy Ebsen, had to be replaced by Jack Haley due to an aluminum make-up allergy. The faithful Dorothy canine companion, toto, maleatto, and western actress's evil witch Margaret Hamilton was accidentally burned during shooting. Despite the difficulties, the film He collected over $ 2 million and remains a timeless classic. The 1982 Drama Fitzcarraldo's adventure had one of the most difficult productions in the history of cinema. The film was director Werner Herzog, the crazy story of the real rubber baron Carlos Fermín Fitzcarrald. Shot in South America, one of the most famous scenes of the film involves dragging a gigantic steamer on a hill. Photo of courtesy: Jean-Louis Atlan / Sygma / Getty Images Herzog has stubbornly rejected with miniature effects and insisted that they shoot at the scene with a real 320 ton-toned steamer. The scene was a disaster - there were numerous wounds and even dead. The actors suffered from dysentery, and two small aircraft accidents Brought to further injured. It is a miracle that the film has ever been completed. Rapa-Nui has been almost destined from the beginning. The historical drama of 1994 focuses on the history of the easter island. Director Kevin Reynolds described the film's shot as a "nightmare". It was difficult to do due to the distance of the position. The film was a disaster in doing, but it has become an acclaimed film of the 70s. He collected $ 750,000 and remains a classic cult until today. James Cameron, 1989 Drama of science fiction The Abyss was an ambitious project. Characterized by a series of underwater scenes, the submarine oil system has requested 18 months to build. The budget of the film was around $ 2 million. Members of the cast and crew have often worked 70 hours a week, and the actors of Ed Harris and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio were on the edge of a mental collapse. Photo courtesy: 20th century Fox / IMDB at one point, Merantonio screamed at Cameron, "We are not animals!" This was in response to the suggestion of the Director according to which the actors should urinate in their mutes to save time to work on the prens. While the film was well received critically and blocked $ 90 million, everyone was happy when it was over. The director Richard Stanley desperately wanted the search for his dream project: an adaptation of H.G. Wells, Å »Novement The island of Dr. Moreau. Stanley was particularly electrified when acclaimed the Marlon Brando actor signed to play the title role. But then, three days to shoot the 1996 Thriller, Stanley was fired.
