Time is easy to come these days, what with mobile apps and desktop widgets and windows in your wall and all this. But sometimes dry weather data can be tricky. Weddar tells you how it feels. What? Weddar, free, iPhone. It is crowdsourced weather, basically; instead of checking what the temperature is, you analyze the map for reports from iPhone-wielding weather "reporters" nearby. They will have selected one of the nine options, ranging from "perfect" or "big" to "freezing" or "hell". Don't go out if you feel in hell! You can also make your report, which is stamped in your location on other users' maps. There are also other social things like a leaderboard reporter and the ability to add reliable reporters to a list of friends. Who's okay with that? People who control time, but still do not find themselves dressing properly; people who want to broadcast their own weather report to the world. Why is it better than alternatives? Sure, your weather app says it's 60 degrees out, but if the wind blows like a crazy person, you'll regret not wearing a jacket. Come on. Weddar would presumably give you a head on the holes. Or any other discrepancy between empirical time and real life that is-si-come-outside time. The app is also well designed and the user interface to report time is simple and attractive. So it's okay! How could it be even better? Well, the time of source of the crowd you need a crowd from which to come, and even in New York City there were only a handful of journalists out there today. (It's beautiful out!) So your little mileage of the city may vary. And then, of course, there is the question of subjectivity, one day I find "heavy" that you cannot, etc., etc. Weddar for iPhone | iTunes We are always looking for cool apps—for iOS, Android, Windows Phone or anything—to make the App feature of the day. If you meet one, you think we should take a look, please let us know. Although the updated and new models typically come during some periods of the year, the ongoing coronavirus pandemic ended up pushing back the times somehow. But now that the delayed releases have finally started to occur, we are learning just how can (and let's face it, cool) the latest devices are really. Many things were upset in 2020, but these recent and upcoming smartphone versions there give something to expect — at least for a while. From the very anticipated iPhone of Apple 12 to break the hits like Samsung Galaxy Note 20 and OneNote 8 Pro, some of the most impressive Today they are ready to make the year a little bit better for everyone. If you are like many consumers, one of the biggest challenges when you want to upgrade your phone is deciding which phone to go with next. To narrow down the selection to the best option for your needs, you need to carefully consider a few key points. Start by determining your price range. It won't do any good to fall in love with a phone that doesn't fit comfortably into your budget. If a phone is on the more expensive side, make sure you do some research to make sure all the features you're paying for are things you actually use. Photo Courtesy: Don Arnold/WireImage/Getty Images In terms of functionality, make sure the phone you've chosen is capable of running your favorite apps, as some apps are limited to specific operating systems or even specific phone models. You also need to make sure that the phone you want can be used with your favorite carrier. You probably don't want to change carrier just to use a specific phone (or maybe you want). Check the specifications on storage space, battery capacity, camera quality and other features you're interested in. No matter how hype a phone gets, don't forget that you're the one who will have to rely on it on a daily basis. There's nothing wrong with paying less for a simple phone if you don't spend a lot of time using extra fancy features. The same goes for justifying buying an expensive phone if you actually use it for a wide range of tasks. The most important thing is to make sure you get the best value for money according to your preferences and needs. If Samsung's smartphone predictions are punctual, then the future is bound to be foldable. Samsung released its long-awaited Galaxy Z Fold2 in mid-September and it's never revolutionary. CNET editors report that, with the Z Fold2, Samsung has fixed many of the major flaws afflicting the original Z Fold, namely that the originals were too fragile and had multiple failure points which caused several areas of the phone to break. And those are not what you want to face when you buy an expensive and unique phone like this. Photo Courtesy: David Becker/Getty Images News/Getty Images Fortunately, the 7.6-inch internal display is sleek and luxurious, and is fast enough and capable to even replace your laptop when it comes to handling certain activities. The 120Hz refresh rate means there's virtually no blurring of motion in videos and apps, and the apps seamlessly slide from the internal folding screen to the smaller external screen allowing you to use the device as a Traditional smartphone. The Z Fold2 is also more robust than the original, thanks to the addition of ultra-thin glass on the internal screen. All in all, this phone is a captivating heavy hitter à € à € à € even with its current price. Obviously, 2020 is not exactly a year of type «Business as usual», so it shouldn't be surprising that Apple Apple Announced iPhone 12's debut would be delayed. Fortunately, slowdown only pushed back the typical September Apple Date release typical of September about two months - and on November 13 buyers finally gained access to the latest news in Apple's flagship training. courtesy photo: Conceptsiphone / YouTube Now that the iPhone 12 is here, it is impressed technical editors and everyday users with its redesigned flat-board screen that boasts ceramic shield technology - a formulation that provides four times the amount of previous fall performance The models had. Its up-to-date cameras are impressive, with the true depth and processing of deep-melting images to combine multiple images into one for crispist photos possible. You may also find it surprising that an iPhone appears with the designation of having a great battery life, but the iPhone 12 really delivers here. The entire size 12 à € "There is also a 12 mini designed for use with one hand easier - provides up to 17 hours of video playback, 11 hours of streaming playback and 65 hours of audio playback. The Sony website currently offers Sneak sanek of its next Xperia Pro, and if you love the shooting video, you will want to pay attention to this. The 5G smartphone comes with a triple-telecamera back that offers professional photographers something that really turns on. Equipped with Zeiss lenses, AF of the real-time eye that works both on humans and animals, and new manual controls, the Xperia camera is said to give the power of the iPhone 12 a ride for its money. Xperia PRO is also provided with an HDMI input that allows you to connect to an actual camera and transmission shooting using the 5G mmwave connectivity. With 16 integrated antenna pieces, losing the signal will also become a concern of the past. The 21: 9 Cinema-wide 6.5"4K HDR OLED display, blur motion technology and Dolby Atmos6 sound beautifully show all HDR 4K movies that are recorded using features such as active mode, steadysbot and slower. In short, if the video is your video, then This is definitely a smartphone that doesn't mind waiting. Shortly after the new galaxy of Samsung Note 20 and Note 20 Ultra were announced, sales began on the new phones of the Samsung stylus. Samsung Championship as the "Power Phone" of note 20 certainly brings a lot to the table. Made with the toughest gorilla glass ever used on a smartphone, the note 20 features a 6.7-inch display on the standard model or a 6.9-inch screen on the "Ultra" counterpart. This version of The Galaxy Note can be of particular interest to players, thanks to an Agable Agable controller that allows you to play your own Xbox Favorites directly on the phone screen. The note 20 camera is also designed to address videographers and claims to present the maximum-king video recording capacity solution available on a smartphone. Able to produce crunchy videos, 8K and equipped with class degree modification controls, the phone certainly deserves to take a look at the grass cinemas. Both models also with the new Samsung S Pen. Not only does it allow you to take notes on the screen, but it puts in some additional effort to straighten your writing, allowing you to frantically tap into your heart. This year, OnePlus introduced its new 8 Pro, a smartphone full of functionality large enough to become a valid competitor for Samsung's Galaxy S20 Plus. Like most hottest phones of the year, the OnePlus 8 Pro jumped to the 5G feature and attacked a lot of additional advantages to add further to the charm. The 6.78 inch curved QHD screen and 120Hz update rate ensure a wonderful viewing experience when it comes to watching your favorite videos, scrolling photos and games. The smartphone is also equipped with a 48MP quad camera, 48MP ultra-wide camera, 5MP rear color filter and 16MP front camera, offering stunning photos and videos taken after shooting. With 8 GB of RAM and 128 GB of storage, the 8 Pro operating system works on a Qualcomm Snapdragon 865 processor. The 4510mAh high-capacity battery offers both the bending plug-in and wireless charging. It comes with access to Alexa speaker to help you make calls, play music and more, simply asking the virtual assistant to take care of it. it.
